

A woven textile artwork made of pink and orange fabric strips on a pink background. The strips are woven in a grid pattern, creating a textured, fabric-like appearance. The colors are soft and pastel, with the pink strips being a slightly darker shade than the background, and the orange strips being a warm, muted tone.

Play-Ability

Exploring moments of play through color harmony, fabric manipulation, and craft. Jenna VanFleteren creates an exhibition of transformative textiles reminiscent of the domestically familiar.

Engaging a vibrant palette, Jenna VanFleteren creates a dynamic landscape of textile studies. Taking candy pink, rose gold, and neon green broadcloth, she engages in the play of fabric manipulation and color proportion to discover the delicate relationship between complimentary colors: at times appearing balanced and soothing, at others vibrant and visually tense.

Each work begins with cut rectangular strips of broadcloth patchworked into repetitive patterns through various techniques of wave tucks, quilting, and weaving to create soft and flowing dimension.

Some works are delicately crafted into domestic typologies - a shower curtain, a window curtain, a quilt - reminding us of our intimate relationship with textiles and the role of color and texture in facilitating this relationship. Smaller studies are portals of discovery into the endless possibilities that can be found in a "constrained" palette through color and texture play.
